Glossier, Inc. Hires New Chief Diversity and Inclusion Officer

Glossier, Inc. announced today that has hired Aaron Huang, 37, as its new chief diversity and inclusion officer, who will report to the CEO.

Before joining Glossier, Huang held many human resources positions at various different companies, including Sephora and Milk Makeup.

Huang attended Princeton University and received his bachelor's degree in management. Furthermore, he received an MBA in human resource management with a specialization in workplace diversity from the University of Notre Dame.

Currently, Huang is a member of the Princeton University President's Diversity and Inclusion Commission, as well as a member of the board of directors of the Asian American Legal Defense and Education Fund. Huang is married and has three children.

"We are thrilled to finally create a chief diversity and inclusion position. Diversity and inclusion is extremely important to us at Glossier and we look forward to begin working with Aaron Huang. His qualifications and experience in this field are impressive, and we are excited to see what he will offer us," said Emily Weiss, founder and CEO of Glossier, Inc.
